1. The Polish Workers' Party (PPR), with the help of the Office of Public Security (UBP), was engaged during September 1947 in a campaign to recruit volunteers in Poland for service against the "fascists" [redacted] 25X1
[redacted]
2. Each volunteer is said to receive 30,000 zl. per month, in addition to allotments paid to each member of his family at the time he is accepted for service. Recruits are required to take a one-month training course at a camp between Zambrow (R53/F87) and Lomza (R54/F79).
3. The first group of trained volunteers, numbering about 800 men, was to be sent to Yugoslavia about 18 October.
4. The entire recruiting program is being kept secret, and appears to be confined to members of Polish Communist groups. [redacted] 25X1 were then under way to recruit International Brigade volunteers in western Pomerania for service in Yugoslavia. Eligibility was limited to PPR members and to PPS members who had assisted in uncovering plots against the Polish Government. Families of volunteers were to receive 20,000 zL. per month. [redacted] every aspect of the operation must be kept secret.)
